Coal Price Hike Said Inevitable

Miners Granted $1 A Day Raise

WASHINGTON, June 25—An early increase in coal prices is anticipated today as a result of the new soft coal wage contract being completed by John L. Lewis and bituminous operators.

The 1948 agreement, to replace the pact expiring June 30, calls for a dollar-a-day wage increase for Lewis' 400,000 miners and a boost from 10 to 20 cents a ton in the royalty for the UMW welfare fund.

It is estimated that the new contract may cost the industry approximately $150 million annually.

Harry M. Moses, president of U. S. Steel's coal subsidiaries and representative of "captive" mines in the bargaining parley, predicted that a price increase is "inevitable."

The steel industry several months ago refused a wage boost for 1,000,000 steel workers, and Moses said that steel is equally opposed to the coal wage hike.

HOWEVER, the U. S. Steel official said he is aware "of the realities of this situation" and will go along with the settlement negotiated by commercial coal interests in order to avoid a suspension of steel production.

Lewis and his operators are expected to complete and sign the new contract today.

The strike-averting agreement was reached 48 hours after both parties appeared before a presidential fact-finding board.

The panel was studying the advisability of another court injunction against the miners to prevent a summer mine shutdown.

The "break" in the long soft coal dispute stemmed, however, from a decision of Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough last Tuesday upholding Lewis in his fight with the operations to activate the miners' 1947 welfare fund.

2 Girls Quit Beauty Contest Hit By Bishop

WHEELING, W. Va., June 25.—The Wheeling beauty contest is minus two participants today after the Rev. John J. Swint, Catholic bishop of the diocese, condemned the exhibition as "pagan and indecent."

Gertrude Louise Bedway and Helen Mamula, both Catholics, dropped out of the contest after they were threatened with ex-communications.

Officials of the contest said the pageant will go on as scheduled in Oglebay Park next Monday night.

Gov. Dewey, having gone out or the nomination three times, is now entitled to permanent possession of the campaign train.

The feeling is that the delegates took Dewey over Stassen because Harold was too big for small screen television.

There would be no point in presenting a candidate who would address the video audience as "my friends" from the middle button of his vest.

500 County 4-H Clubbers To Get Physical Exams

Nearly 500 Pickaway County 4-H Club members are slated to troop into the offices of Health Commissioner A. D. Blackburn this Summer for annual physical examinations.

First of the 32 county clubs to be examined will be the Walnut Sew and Sew organization, which is to visit the health office at 9 a. m. Monday.

The health examination is part of the Pickaway County 4-H Club program aimed at developing and stimulating interest in the organizations. The exam is a part of the 4-H "Honor Club" contest in which all clubs securing 85 or more percent of a total 100 percent program are qualified.

The program gives 25 percent to the club for members who complete all their assigned projects in farm and home work, 10 percent for perfect attendance at all meetings, 15 percent for grading of various assigned projects, five percent for procuring new members, five percent for the neatness and accuracy of the club's record book, 10 percent for community achievement, 10 percent for participating in the health program, five percent for avoiding health, safety and fire hazards and 15 percent for participation in livestock judging, club tours, style revue, picnic or demonstrations at three or more meetings.

Unofficial reports said that Egyptian planes bombed Jewish settlements in the same area.

The Israeli statement said that the pilot of the UN plane, Col. Martin of the United States Air Force, was not hurt in the incident.

Reds Set Up Bar Against Food

Loads Into Berlin New Order Believed To Be Move To Starve Out Western Allies

BERLIN, June 25—Russia issued orders today that no Soviet zone food is to be shipped into sectors of Berlin occupied by the Western Powers.

The order, an apparent effort to "starve out" the West, was issued to the Berlin central food office situated in the Soviet sector.

This development came while the United States and British military governors of Germany conferred in Berlin on countermeasures to be taken in the face of a stiffening Soviet attitude.

The Russians, who yesterday declared that the four-power Berlin Control Council "to all intents and purposes" ceased to exist, failed to attend the only two committee meetings of the Kommandatura scheduled for today.

They explained their absence from sessions of the finance and education committees by saying they were "too busy" to attend.

THE SOVIET-controlled ADN Agency announced meanwhile that repairs to the Berlin-Helmstedt railway, which was shut down yesterday, will require much longer than originally planned.

This was tantamount to saying that the Russians intend to block the line indefinitely.

With cut-offs of power from Soviet generator plants becoming increasingly effective, the western sectors now are solely dependent on their own inadequate power houses.

It was widely reported that Soviet Military Governor Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky is away from Berlin.

He was said to have gone to Warsaw, where the foreign ministers of Russia and Soviet satellite states issued a communiqué calling on the Western Powers to join Mos-

British Eye Berlin Issue

Situation Labeled 'Delicate, Serious'

LONDON, June 25—The British deputy military governor in Germany arrived in London by plane today to confer with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin on the mounting Berlin crisis.

The announcement of the arrival of the governor, Maj. Gen. Nevil C. D. Brownlow, came after Bevin told the House of Commons that the situation in the former German capital is "delicate and serious."

He said that Britain's military commander in Germany, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, has advised him that foodstocks, however, are sufficient to render any immediate anxiety unnecessary.

Bevin said that the populace in the western sectors of Berlin is displaying "great calmness and showing no sign of being intimidated."

The Berlin crisis was one of the main topics of a two-hour cabinet session this morning. The ministers conferred following a special session which ended last midnight.

Truman Expected To Set Up Draft Machinery Soon

WASHINGTON, June 25—President Truman is expected today to act quickly in setting up Selective Service machinery to handle a peacetime draft which begins three years after the end of World War II.

The President approved the draft bill late yesterday following a conference with Secretaries Forrestal of Defense, Royal of Army and Symington of Air.

Three million youths 18 through 25 will register but the 18-year-olds will not be called up on service. The training period is for 21 months.

Mr. Truman is expected to follow his action with a proclamation replacing the office of Selective Service Records and establishing an agency patterned after the wartime draft organization.

MILITARY officials said that those men who signed up for the naval reserve or the National Guard up to last midnight would be exempt from the draft.

They said that they are not certain when inductions actually will start although it was reported that registration will begin within 60 days.

Under law, draftees start reporting for duty no earlier than 90 days after the President signs the bill. This should mean that inductions start on Sept. 22. But defense officials said they are not clear on the timing and will have to study the matter further.

The weather bureau's five-day outlook for Ohio follows:

"Temperatures will average a little above normal during the period. Cooler weather Saturday, with somewhat warmer weather early next week. Showers in the west portion Saturday and scattered showers over the entire area Sunday and Monday. Total rainfall will average about one-quarter to one-half inch."

Californian Named By Acclamation

New Yorker Wins On Third Ballot

PHILADELPHIA, June 25—It's Dewey and Warren!

The Republican national convention today jubilantly nominated Gov. Earl W. Warren of California as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's running-mate in the 1948 GOP "victory ticket."

Warren won the vice-presidential nomination by acclamation. Only Warren's name went to the convention.

The Californian was nominated by Col. Lamar Tooe of Oregon, a World War I buddy of Warren. Then his nomination was seconded by Sen. Irving M. Ives of New York, a Dewey stalwart, and by Gov. Morley Griswold of Nevada, and John Wilkinson of North Carolina.

On the first call of the roll, Arizona had announced it would "place the name of Harold E. Stassen in nomination."

BUT AFTER Warren's name was before the convention, Arizona announced it was "passing"—which meant it would not put Stassen's name to the convention.

Chairman Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts immediately announced that only Warren's name was before the convention. Speaker Martin then shouted:

"Without objection, Gov. Earl Warren will be nominated by acclamation."

A roar of applause swept the convention and Warren was nominated. It was that easy.

It happened so fast that Martin reenacted the scene five minutes later to accommodate moviemakers who had missed it entirely.

There were indications of a floor battle between Warren and Stassen right up to the minute Wilkinson stopped speaking.

But apparently Stassen didn't desire the fight, after having lost the presidential nomination to Dewey.

ONLY TWO minutes before Warren was nominated, Stassen's headquarters issued a statement saying the Minnesota man would "accept the nomination for vice-president if drafted by the convention."

Strouse was employed by the Brewer Construction Co., of Lancaster and was hauling hot-mix in a dump truck from Lancaster to a road project on Route 56, west of Circleville.

Sheriff Radcliff reported.

He said rescuers avoided the use of a cutting torch because of escaping gasoline which may have been ignited.

Strouse was working on a floor battle between Warren and Stassen right up to the minute Wilkinson stopped speaking.

But apparently Stassen didn't desire the fight, after having lost the presidential nomination to Dewey.

Impact of the crash pinned Strouse in the cab of his truck for nearly an hour while workers tried metal loose. Sheriff Charles Radcliff reported.

He said rescuers avoided the use of a cutting torch because of escaping gasoline which may have been ignited.

Strouse was working on a floor battle between Warren and Stassen right up to the minute Wilkinson stopped speaking.

The accident occurred about 10:30 a. m. Friday, the sheriff stated. He said the truck plowed through a fence before crashing into a tree.

Impact of the collision pushed the motor, hood and instrument panel back into the truck cab pinning the driver to his seat.

Wheeler claims he received personal injuries on that date when he sneaked into his neighbor's yard to tinker with the defendant's tree lights.

Berry waxed wrathful when the lights flickered out. He hauled out his shotgun and let fly.

Wheeler says 100 pellets hit home causing him to walk awkwardly ever since. In addition he complained of severe pains and said he had been unable to work.

Mother Indicted In Poison Case

CINCINNATI, June 25—A Cincinnati mother was indicted for first degree murder to day in connection with the poisoning of her 11-year-old daughter.

The Hamilton County grand jury returned the indictment charging Mrs. Mary Clay Watts with the poisoning of her daughter, Barbara Ann, who was heir to $11,000 left by her father. The jury acted after hearing 14 witnesses.

Mrs. Watts was arrested by Norwood police June 13, six days after a verdict of murder by poisoning was returned by Coroner Herbert Lyle.

Californian Named By Acclamation

Dewey and Warren would pose for photographs in Dewey's headquarters a half hour after his nomination.

There may have been some doubt in the minds of Stassen's friends but there was no doubt in Dewey's mind.

Dewey won the presidential nomination on the third ballot last night after all his rivals retired in his favor. He had rolled up a tremendous lead of 515 votes—just 33 short of victory—on the second ballot.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Gov. Earl Warren of California, and Harold Stassen all retired to make his nomination unanimous.

Dewey joins two great Americans—Charles Evans Hughes and Abraham Lincoln—in the history books as being the only Republicans nominated on a third ballot.

Dewey won his nomination in a dramatic, exciting battle.

ON THE FIRST ballot, the governors got 434 votes. His "Stop Dewey" rivals had failed to hold him below the 400 mark. Only one Republican candidate—Former President Theodore Roosevelt in 1912—ever passed the 400 mark without winning the nomination.

Taft drew 224 and Stassen 157, with favorite sons getting lesser support, on the first ballot.

On the second ballot, Dewey went to 274 with the aid of Illinois and Stassen fell off to 149. Dewey picked up votes all down the line his highest gain being 24 from New Jersey, four each in Nebraska and South Dakota and three in Virginia. Dewey needed 33 votes for the nomination.

There was a brief flurry when the "Stop Dewey" coalition proposed a recess from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. The uproar ended when William F. Bleakley of New York said his delegation had no objection to the recess. The recess benefited Dewey. It won him an unanimous nomination.

The Vandenberg forces capitulated and forced all the other "Stop Dewey" coalitions to throw in the sponge.

Sen. Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut led the break. He was having serious trouble holding his delegates in line for him as a favorite son. Finally he agreed with Dewey's Connecticut leaders to release the delegation's 19 votes. That was enough. It started the bandwagon.

Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan reporting trouble in his delegation, conferred with Vandenberg. The senator agreed to release his home state delegation with its 41 votes.

THE WHOLE "Stop Dewey" movement collapsed.

By the time the convention reassembled, Taft, Warren and Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois agreed to support Dewey.

The first to surrender publicly was Taft. He sent his colleague and nominator, Sen. John Bricker, to the platform with a statement. In it, Taft Said:

"I release my delegates and ask them to vote for Gov. Dewey with all their force and enthusiasm. I shall support him with all my enthusiasm. Let's make his selection unanimous."

In rapid order, Sen. Knowland of California offered Warren's withdrawal. Gov. Sigler took Vandenberg out of it. Sen. Baldwin retired himself and Harlan Kelley of Wisconsin withdrew Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

An effort was made to nominate Dewey by acclamation but the rules of convention forced a rollcall.

Dewey got all the votes—California being polled delegate by delegate—for a unanimous ballot of 1,094 votes. He actually was nominated at 7:46 p.m. when New Hampshire gave him eight votes for a total of 554 when only 548 were needed.

Dewey Promises Cleanup On Capitol Hill Next Year

around and Dewey aides rushed about exclaiming: "It's all over."

Dewey, in shirt sleeves, emerged from his suite at 7:25 p.m., amid the flare of popping flashlights. The New York governor stood soberly and silent for nearly a minute.

Then, in grave tones, he said: "I am humbly grateful for the confidence of the elected representatives of the Republican Party and I hope God gives me strength to merit it."

Half an hour later the governor, accompanied by Mrs. Dewey, was on his way to Convention Hall to accept the nomination.

Dewey delivered his acceptance speech slowly and gravely. He said:

"The responsibility and the opportunity that have come to our party are the greatest in the history of free government. For tonight our future—our peace, our prosperity, the very fate of freedom—hangs in a precarious balance."

MERE VICTORY in an election is not our task or our purpose. Our task is to fill our victory with such meaning that mankind everywhere, yearning for freedom, will take heart and move forward out of this desperate darkness into the light of freedom's promise."

Half an hour later the governor, accompanied by Mrs. Dewey, was on his way to Convention Hall to accept the nomination.

He declared:

"Beginning next January we can start to restore teamwork to government and unity to the government of the United States.

"Mr. Truman had to ask for $25 million to find the Communists in his government and get rid of them. Well, you know, we have a chance to get an administration at last that won't appoint them in the first place.

"I assure you we will have the finest house-cleaning in Washington in the history of our government.

"We will go to Washington with one purpose in mind—to bring to our government a new degree of competence with a leadership of fine, outstanding men and women in all sections of our country.

"We shall establish a foreign policy which does not vacillate from one day to the other, going to appeasement one day and the next to bluster.

"We shall establish a State department and a policy for our people which will start building a strong and permanent peace in the world—and to that I dedicate my whole soul and every possible capacity I can bring to my government."

Californian Named By Acclamation

There may have been some doubt in the minds of Stassen's friends but there was no doubt in Dewey's mind.

Dewey won the presidential nomination on the third ballot last night after all his rivals retired in his favor. He had rolled up a tremendous lead of 515 votes—just 33 short of victory—on the second ballot.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Gov. Earl Warren of California, and Harold Stassen all retired to make his nomination unanimous.

Dewey joins two great Americans—Charles Evans Hughes and Abraham Lincoln—in the history books as being the only Republicans nominated on a third ballot.

Dewey won his nomination in a dramatic, exciting battle.

ON THE FIRST ballot, the governor got 434 votes. His "Stop Dewey" rivals had to hold him below the 400 mark. Only one Republican candidate—Former President Theodore Roosevelt in 1912—ever passed the 400 mark without winning the nomination.

Taft drew 224 and Stassen 157, with favorite sons getting lesser support, on the first ballot.

On the second ballot Dewey went to 515, Taft to 274 with the aid of Illinois and Stassen fell off to 149. Dewey picked up votes all down the line his highest gain being 24 from New Jersey, four each in Nebraska and South Dakota, and three in Virginia. Dewey needed 33 votes for the nomination.

There was a brief flurry when the "Stop Dewey" coalition proposed a recess from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. The uproar ended when William F. Bleakley of New York said his delegation had no objection to the recess. The recess benefited Dewey. It won him an unanimous nomination.

The Vandenberg forces capitulated and forced all the other "Stop Dewey" coalitionists to throw in the sponge.

Local Woman Named Officer In State DUV

Mrs. E. L. Tolbert of 160 Walnut street, Friday was elected department inspector of the Ohio Daughters of Union Veterans, during its annual convention in Columbus.

Mrs. Tolbert is patriotic instructor of the local tent. Two years ago she served as state president of the organization. Her new office will take her to annual inspections of each of the 95 tents in Ohio during the coming year.

Mrs. Mary Bennett of Canton was elected president. Other new officers included Lovell Faulkner of Cincinnati, senior vice-president; Elizabeth Campbell of Mansfield junior vice-president; Laura Morrison of Akron, chaplain; Ethyl Lerner, of Cambridge, treasurer; and Marjorie Knox of Columbus, delegate-at-large.

A mounting clamor developed in Britain today for "tough" government action in the face of the increasingly grave situation in Berlin.

The British press is unanimous in the opinion that withdrawal from Berlin by the Western Allies under Soviet pressure would be a disaster of the first magnitude.

The powerful Yorkshire Post said:

"We cannot meekly submit to insult after insult."

THE CONSENSUS is that the Soviets are pursuing a policy in which they will employ everything short of war. But the British are plainly worried about exact Soviet intentions.

Steady exchanges are continuing with Washington and Paris on the Berlin matter. Diplomatic quarters anticipate a strong joint diplomatic protest to the Russians within the next 48 hours.

Newspapers generally warned that Britain must not retreat from the latest provocation by the Russians.

The Daily Mail declared that "Berlin is the testing ground in the struggle between East and West," adding:

"The faith, trust and hope of millions of people in civilized lands of the West are reposed in Christian powers. If we fail them they will be condemned to the slavery and terror of Russian Communism."

The diplomatic correspondent of this newspaper said that "obviously events are marching to a climax."

ARMY MEN said the four were arrested while traveling across the Soviet sector en route to the French sector Wednesday night.

It was announced that American military police patrols now are equipped with machineguns to insure strict Soviet compliance with military police orders in the U.S. sector.

The provost marshal's office revealed also that a Soviet Major had attempted to resist arrest on a minor charge by drawing his gun.

Goddern Farm System Detailed

Economic land use to simplify erosion control and assist with the upkeep of minerals and organic matter content of soils through grassland farming is being undertaken on the Dean Godden farm, south of Williamsport.

J. A. Muster, local soil conservationist, and Harry Hoegh, regional agronomist of the soil conservation service, inspected the Godden farms recently to report on the blue-grass-white clover pasture.

Electricity Aids Chicken Chores

Electricity has added one more chore to its list of poultry operations. It has invaded the egg storage room in a battle against mold and musty odors.

One Virginia farmer has rigged up lamps to help his light. The "armament" consists of two bactericidal lights. From a central place on the ceiling, the lights radiate powerful germ-killing rays into every part of the room.

The egg storage room has been free of mold and musty odors since the equipment was installed three years ago.

As a result, eggs stored there have been rated as "top quality" and sold at premium prices.

Electricity also lends a hand in incubating and brooding operations; cleaning and grading eggs; ventilating and lighting poultry houses, debeaking, watering and, finally, after killing, in removing feathers and freezing for delayed home use or commercial sale.

Use of electricity on farms has made marked strides recently.

Be on Lookout for Bramble Ills

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

MANY gardeners pay little or no attention to their "berry patch" except at picking time. Yet brambles suffer from insects and diseases which affect their health and productivity.

Anthracnose is one of the most destructive diseases of brambles. It attacks the stems, leaves and fruit and often destroys the entire crop.

Raspberry canes also become infected with rose scale. Sometimes this scale becomes abundant enough to encrust portions of the bramble canes and give them a white, scuffy appearance, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. It is called rose scale because it also infests roses.

Control of both anthracnose and rose scale consists of sanitation, pruning and spraying. All badly infected canes must be pruned out and burned. Lime-sulfur sprays also will help. This should be done when the bushes are dormant or in the spring when young.

To control these borers, cut out any infested canes. Make the cut somewhat below the injured part and burn the cuttings so they will contain the eggs of the borer.

Fly Immunity To DDT Now Said Debatable

Do flies become immune or resistant to DDT after it has been used for a few years?

This question arises from the fact that a few fly-control failures on farms where DDT was effective in other years have been hard to account for. The explanation was that the flies probably had become resistant to the chemical.

Uncle Sam's entomologists admit that insects can develop resistance to the insecticides used against them, as in the case of the apple codling moth against which lead arsenate lost its effectiveness.

Moreover, Uncle Sam's bug men say they have, in the laboratory, been able to develop a DDT-resistant strain of flies. It is not likely that a DDT-resistant strain would develop naturally in the short time since DDT was first used.

These egg punctures often serve as the entrance points for bramble diseases. Canes frequently die above these punctures, and where they are numerous, the canes split and break off.

Cane-borers also are considered one of the most serious insect pests of the raspberry, also of blackberry and dewberry plants. The larvae of the cane-borer frequently cause swellings of the canes. As result of this attack, the cane dies or breaks off at the point where the swelling occurs.

Cane-borers also are considered one of the most serious insect pests of the raspberry, also of blackberry and dewberry plants. The larvae of the cane-borer frequently cause swellings of the canes. As result of this attack, the cane dies or breaks off at the point where the swelling occurs.

NEW GERMAN CURRENCY

IN SETTING up a new currency in western Germany the Allied occupying powers are seeking to prevent runaway inflation. As a more immediate aim, a sound currency is wanted to facilitate operation of the European Recovery Program in Germany. Much of the success of the move will depend on the ability to develop enough productive wealth in Germany to back the new currency.

Against whatever economic gains are achieved there must be weighed the effects of a further widening of the breach between eastern and western Germany.

The two parts of Germany now have different currencies, and relations between Allied and Russian occupation authorities appear to have been further strained. If the currency reform has the desired effect, economic differences between the two sections will be increased.

On the other hand, it is possible that if the new currency proves sound the result might be complete collapse of the old German currency in the eastern zone, or even of a separately revised currency, unless Russia is prepared to pour wealth into Germany to support it. Thus a common currency might be forced, and might bring other steps leading back toward cooperation.

Only time can tell what the results may be.

COMMITTEE UPHELD

THE QUESTION of whether or not the investigations of the House un-American Activities Committee are legal has been settled by recent decisions of the Supreme Court.

It has refused to review appeals of two contempt convictions which are considered token cases. The eleven members of an organization called the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee were convicted of contempt after having refused to turn their records over to the committee. The second case was that of an admitted Communist who refused to be sworn in before the committee.

As a result of these decisions it is now evident that a witness summoned before the committee cannot refuse to be sworn, and that he also cannot refuse to produce evidence requested, on the grounds that the committee is illegal. One question remains to be cleared up: Can a witness refuse to answer a question which he claims violates his constitutional rights? A federal district court has ruled that the witness must answer, but no such case has yet come to the Supreme Court.

NEW YORK—I don't suppose a man can say he really has lived until a house detective has knocked on the door of the hotel room in which he is situated for the moment. I have lived.

Back in the dim past, when my unending search for characters off the beaten path carried me into strange and eerie corners of the earth, I once sat on the edge of a hotel bed around midnight and interviewed two strip-teasers who just had come from their last show, and it was while they were explaining the intricacies of the grind and bump that this house dick rapped ominously on the portal and inquired what I was doing in the room at that sinful hour.

For just a moment I was so overcome by the world-weary, glamorous aspect of the incident that I was tempted to act crestfallen and guilty and thus play the scene out to the hilt, but the strippers got so mad quickly kicking him downstairs.

My next meeting with a house dick was not until last night, when I sat in a dark corner of the Hotel Taft taproom, right in the middle of the big drag, and inquired of John O'Donnell about the subtle nuances and angles of his profession.

I label Mr. O'Donnell a house detective over the mild cries and protests of Mr. Al Lewis, the Taft's manager, who tried to sell me the title "house protection officer," without much success. As a matter of cold fact, O'Donnell really is closer to being a bouncer, since his beat is the taproom.

There is another house protection officer—I CANNOT say that with a straight face—who is entrusted with the more delicate job of patrolling the rooms and suites, guarding vigilantly against Sin.

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

Democracy, in its truest sense, is direct participation of the people in the decisions of government. It is often, and correctly, suggested that the New England town meeting comes closest to a truly Democratic institution. Actually, the Republican convention this year is an enlarged town meeting, with much of the same independence of action and speech that my neighbors in Sandisfield, Mass., express at their sessions.

No one bosses this convention. No Mark Hanna has made himself felt. No great leader has been produced either by the course of events or by outstanding speech. In the various candidates' headquarters, the conversation indicates that this is equally true within the states. The voting indicates that delegates vote independently, and in the effort to influence votes, the drummers and solicitors approach not outstanding personalities, but individual delegates. That is one reason why it is possible to say that no candidate can with any approach to assurance tell even his best friend that he knows he will be nominated.

That also is the reason why the opening sessions of the convention produced relatively mild cheering and applause. Clare Luce nearly created one when she interjected Vandenberg's name in a speech where it did not belong. Clare was so beautiful—perhaps lovely is a more accurate description—that one readily can forgive what in another would have been regarded as a major impropriety; namely, to attempt to jump the gun in favor of a candidate prior to actual nomination. The applause was wild and Mrs. Luce sought to stimulate it by smiles and by upward gesticulations, but it died and cleverly she mentioned other candidates to cover the flopperoo.

If anyone could have stimulated a demonstration, Clare Luce could have done it after the elongated speech by Governor Green, and the heat of the lights and the general annoyance with the ushers and pages who are overtrained and forget that the delegates own the convention and that the press and photographers are there to accommodate the Republican party and not the other way around.

Whoever trained that crew must have seen service in Kaiser Wilhelm's Germany army. Not only is a sense of humor lacking but such a rigidity appears in mind and body as to create a general impression of uniformed nuisances. Certainly in their effort to prevent gate crashers, they act as though they were the masters, not temporary jobholders. Also, I want to see the day when press photographer breaks his camera over the head of a stuffed shirt who exhibits a moment of authority by pushing men around. These temporary great men are like temporary gentlemen: they shrivel on exposure.

In that sort of atmosphere, relief in the form of a noisy, shouting, gesticulating demonstration is like a seventh-inning stretch at a ball game. The Luce effort for Vandenberg aborted. It means that no one is more popular than either Taft or Dewey.

If it isn't one thing it's another, and now the 17 year locusts have their turn.

If people never minded anything but their own business, how dull life would be.

O'Donnell is on hand to see that there are no shady doings in the elegant new saloon.

In Dashiell Hammett's books, men become house detectives for a variety of reasons, mostly romantic, but O'Donnell got into the racket because of the sudden and sad end of vaudeville.

John O'Donnell is a large and lumbering man, with pink cheeks and thinning hair, and he looks exactly like a house detective, but he turned to his strange profession of the present only because his blackface act, like all four-a-day turns, one day ran up against the stonewall of talking movies.

Mr. Lewis said that when the Taft began scouting for a taproom watchdog 15 years or so ago, it hired O'Donnell because he wasn't burly and was soft-spoken, but I do not think I would like to come across him in a dark alley.

THE TORRENTS OF SPRING being what they are, the pickup is an ever-present menace in any New York saloon, and preventing its consummation in the Taft taproom is Mr. O'Donnell's chief aim in life. He does it deftly, gently but firmly.

The unescorted ladies, in twosomes or larger groups, sip their Alexanders at one table and the unescorted men gargle their scotches at another table, and the Atlantic ocean might just as well be between Mr. O'Donnell is impassable.

Another of his important duties is persuading happy citizens they have had enough to drink. "The first thing I do," he says, "is stop service, with a nod to the barkeep. Then I approach the guy and ask him with a smile, 'How're you doing?' Then I ease him out."

"You'd be surprised how few raise a fuss. They just grin and say 'OK, pop' or something like that and I start telling them a story and the next thing they know they are in a taxicab headed for home."

The Taft houses some 3,000 guests each night, which is Mr. Lewis' worry, and some 3,000 to 4,000 others eat there every day, a goodly percentage of whom comprise Mr. O'Donnell's worry. He works at night and thus gets little time to see fights, which he loves.

Old vaudevillians forever are dropping into the Taft to see him, cut him on his dialect stories . . . and touch him for a buck or two. John worked for a short while in his career with Charley Mack, before the latter worked up the Moran and Mack Two Black Crows act, and he also was a close friend of George M. Cohan.

A sense of humor, he feels, is his greatest asset as a house protection officer. "I take a little abuse," he says, meditatively, "and if I didn't have that sense of humor, developed from years of knocking around in show business, I might go nuts."

East struggled around in that contract, with just about a queen more than half of the high-card strength on his side, but couldn't quite make it, being down one. With a bit different play, the defenders might have taken more than the five tricks they got, since not a single suit was in really good shape for the declarer.

West's risky bid was his last one. With a hand just slightly above the bare minimum for an opening bid, he should have determined in advance what his whole course of action might be, following the various developments most likely to ensue. If East bid 1-No Trump or 2-Clubs, his call should have been planned to be 2-Diamonds. If it was a diamond bid, he could of course raise. If it was a spade raise, he might try 3-Spades if he felt strong to ascertain if East had a really good raise or a thin one.

But his plan also should have included provision to avoid bidding 3-Diamonds if East responded with 2-Hearts. His call then should have been 2-Spades, which should have been left in by East and probably made despite the bad trump split.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

WHEN Bigelow arrived with the furniture van, Mrs. Potts was indignant at the idea of having him stay at the Lodge. "If he's only going to stay such a short time," she said to Andrew, "there's no reason on earth why Gloria shouldn't move in with me, and he can have her room. He can eat here, too," she added hurriedly. "My, we're going to miss you when you go. I know I will, and Gloria is going to be heart-broken. I only hope she doesn't start bemoaning you at your new house. If she does, just shoot her home. . . . You've been a great help with her, Andy. She was getting a little sassy before you came—seemed to think I was in my dotage, and nobody but a fourteen-year-old knew what was what these days. Well, you squashed that without even trying. She admired you so, she just naturally took to acting nice, and having more respect for older people, and using the manners I'd taught her, goodness knows, but she'd seemed to think it was a crime to use them before. Well, she signed. "If the plumbing should go back on you, or you get sick and tired of your own cooking, you'll always be welcome here."

Andrew thought this was quite the nicest compliment he had ever had. He said, "Oh, I'll be around pestering you a good deal. I've got to learn how to cook, for one thing. I bought a Fanny Farmer cookbook the other day, but I don't know how much truth there is in this saying that anyone with intelligence can cook with a good cookbook. Maybe I'll find I don't have any intelligence!"

"Oh, go along!" Mrs. Potts laughed. "You'll learn, all right, but I don't think any man ever puts the meal together like a woman, or gets things to taste right."

Andrew laughed with her. "One thing sure—I'm not the man to disprove it."

Bigelow moved into Gloria's room under protest. Strangely, Gloria herself did not seem to mind. All that distressed her was that Andrew was going to leave them. She hung about every free minute she had, her shadow-tail, lanky Ellery Emmons—with her.

When the van arrived, she was half mournful, half ecstatic. "Oh, Ellery," she would breathe, as a satiny mahogany highboy was carried into the house, or one of the men went by with a handsome leather-covered chair, "aren't Andy's things beautiful?" And then, with no transition, she would cry, "It's going to be terrible at home without him. We'll miss him so!"

It was full of it all, and regarded her mother with a description composed almost entirely of italics.

"It's perfect!" she cried. "It's simply out of this world, Ma! Andy's got the most beautiful things! And he has a grand piano! And the books! You should see the books! There's millions of them!"

Andrew sighed. "That reminds me, I'd better tackle those books tomorrow, Biggy. Will you run to town and get my draperies from Mrs. McClure? They won't all be done, of course, but we could get those hung that are. And, Mrs. Potts, I wonder if I could have your help again?"

"Why, of course, Andy." Mrs. Potts sat up straighter, and beamed at her prize boarder.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

WHEN Bigelow arrived with the furniture van, Mrs. Potts was indignant at the idea of having him stay at the Lodge. "If he's only going to stay such a short time," she said to Andrew, "there's no reason on earth why Gloria shouldn't move in with me, and he can have her room. He can eat here, too," she added hopefully. "My, we're going to miss you when you go. I know I will, and Gloria is going to be heart-broken. I only hope she doesn't start bothering you at your new house. If she does, you just shoo her home. . . . You've been a great help with her, Andy. She was getting a little sassy before you came—seemed to think I was in my dotage, and nobody but a fourteen-year-old knew what was what these days. Well, you squashed that without even trying. She admired you so, she just naturally took to acting nice, and having more respect for older people, and using the manners I'd taught her, goodness knows, but she seemed to think it was a crime to use them before. Well," she sighed, "if the plumbing should go back on you, or you get sick and tired of your own cooking, you'll always be welcome here."

Andrew thought this was quite the nicest compliment he had ever had. He said, "Oh, I'll be around pestering you a good deal. I've got to learn how to cook, for one thing. I bought a Fanny Farmer cookbook the other day, but I don't know how much truth there is in this saying that anyone with intelligence can cook with a good cookbook. Maybe I'll find I don't have any intelligence!"

"Oh, go along!" Mrs. Potts laughed. "You'll learn, all right, but I don't think any man ever puts a meal together like a woman, or gets things to taste right."

Andrew thought this was quite the nicest compliment he had ever had. He said, "Oh, I'll be around pestering you a good deal. I've got to learn how to cook, for one thing. I bought a Fanny Farmer cookbook the other day, but I don't know how much truth there is in this saying that anyone with intelligence can cook with a good cookbook. Maybe I'll find I don't have any intelligence!"

"Heresy," she supplied. "I know. But you wait and see. You'll be putting an armchair in your own kitchen one of these days."

"Never!" she vowed, but he only laughed.

"And as for a porcelain-topped table, I don't know. I'm afraid it will look too coldly gleaming white."

"Now, Andy, if you think you're going to have a plain wood table, just because it matches your paneling, you're crazy! In the first place, it takes a lot of scrubbing, and you have to use a bleach for it, and your hands will smell for hours afterward. And you'll get splinters in your palms, most likely. And—

"Well, all I ask you to remember is that I'll be doing very simple cooking for a long time to come, I won't need any fancy molds, or angel-cake pans, or things like that."

"Of course not! In fact, I'll be surprised if you do more than boil an egg the first week you're on your own."

"Help! If I thought that, I wouldn't get any kitchen furnishings at all—I'd just keep on eating here," Andrew cried.

"Oh, Andy, I wish you would!"

Gloria breathed, and he added hastily:

"But I'll be too poor, so I'll just have to learn to eat boiled eggs and like them."

Andrew doubted if Mrs. Potts had had more fun in years than she had in buying those kitchen supplies. She dragged him from the one hardware store to the other. Some things she even insisted were "just as good" when bought in the ten-cent stores. "No sense paying twelve cents for something that Woolworth or Newberry has for ten," she would murmur righteously, and pull Andrew after her down long counters full of shining utensils.

She wanted him to buy a stool, and a porcelain-topped table, but he objected.

"No, I want a plain Windsor armchair for the kitchen," he protested, and she turned to him with her large eyes positively popping with horror.

"An armchair—in the kitchen?"

she cried. "Whatever are you thinking of?"

Trudy Ann Robb Becomes Bride Of David Lutz Yates

Ceremony Performed In Marengo, Ill.

First Presbyterian church in Marengo, Ill., was the scene Thursday afternoon of the marriage of Miss Trudy Ann Robb of that city and David Lutz Yates of Circleville.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Scott Robb of Marengo. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Adrian Yates of West Mound street.

The Rev. Roger Allen officiated for the ceremony at 4:30 p.m. before an altar decorated with palms, ferns, baskets of white gladiolas and candelabra. Each pew was marked by tall white tapers tied with white ribbons and fronds of huckleberry.

The bride approached the altar on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage.

The former Miss Robb selected for her wedding a formal white satin gown designed with a sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves with a full skirt terminating into a three-yard train.

A pearl and satin tiara held in place her finger tip veil of illusion. A triple strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom, was her only jewelry.

A white orchid centered her bridal bouquet of white stephanotis.

Mrs. Reinold Rickett of Madison, Wis., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Boggs of Circleville, Miss Maxine Loomis of Marengo, Miss Marcia Cohn of Chicago, and Miss Audrey Hoffmann of New York City.

The attendants were all gowned in white faille fashioned alike with full skirts, tight bodices and cap sleeves. They carried white sweetpeas and carnations interspersed with ivy. They had corresponding flowers arranged in their head-dresses.

David Orr of South Court street was best man. Groomsmen were Howard B. Moore of South Court Street, John G. Boggs of West Union street, Robert N. Trego of Delaware, and Hal Townsend Jr. of Hinsdale. The latter two groomsmen are cousins of the bride.

A period of prenuptial organ and violin music was presented by Mrs. Howard Tanner and Del Coon.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church. Later in the evening members of the bridal party and a few close friends were entertained to dinner in the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Robb selected for her daughter's wedding a French gray gown with silver trimmings and a nylon tulle hat.

Mrs. Yates chose to wear an aqua gown and corresponding aqua hat. Both mothers wore orchids.

The bride was wearing a white gaberdine suit when the new couple left for a two-week trip in the New England states. She pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet at her lapel and carried brown accessories.

The new Mrs. Yates is president of her class at Rockford college, editor of the college yearbook and secretary of the drama club. She also is a member of the Socratic honor society, League of Womem Voters, glee club and the International Relations club.

The bridegroom attended Ohio State university where he

New Building To Benefit By EUB Groups

To defray expenses toward the erection of a proposed new community house at First Evangelical United Brethren church, four projects have been set up by members of Ladies Aid and Service Circles of the church.

Mrs. Paul Dawson, president for the Thursday evening meeting conducted in the community house. Scheduled events to raise funds include Circleville Pumpkin Show, a turkey supper in November, chicken supper in December, and a St. Patrick's Day supper.

The president conducted a business session and heard reports from standing committee members. Mrs. Frank Baker lead the devotions, consisting of group singing, Scripture readings and a prayer.

The society decided to sponsor a delegate to Camp Indianola, south of Lancaster, during July.

Selection of the delegate will be named by the Rev. Carl L. Wilson and Miss Gladys Noggle, youth director of the church.

Mrs. Frank Hawken was in charge of a short program. A reading was given by Mrs. C. O. King; trumpet solo by Patty Nau; two piano solos by Miss Polly Jane Kerns and Miss Ruth Styers, and a vocal solo by Ronald Hawken.

Mrs. Kerns, Mrs. Carl L. Wilson and Mrs. Harry Stvers, leaders of the various circles served refreshments.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. William Helvering have returned to their home, West High street, for the marriage ceremony of Miss Betty Coleman and Donald Miller of Circleville.

The new Mrs. Miller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coleman of Circleville. Her husband is a son of Mrs. Ada Miller of Elm avenue and the late William Miller.

They were attended by Miss Barbara Teets of Circleville and Pvt. Joseph Bailey of Scott Field, III. Mrs. Loring Allen and Mrs. William Teets of Circleville, sisters of the bridegroom, attended the ceremony.

The bride and bridegroom will make a home in Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Puckett, Miss Joan Puckett and Miss Isabelle Noggle of Circleville are enroute to the West coast. They expect to be gone three months. During that period they will stop in Yellowstone Park, Washington and Los Angeles. They will visit John Noggle and other relatives in California.

Before building an outdoor fire, scrape away all leaves, twigs, dry grass and other inflammable materials from a spot five feet in diameter. Dig a hole in the center, and build the fire in the hole.

Mr. and Mrs. Yates were hosts for the rehearsal dinner Wednesday evening. The same day Mr. and Mrs. Robb entertained the bridal party at a brunch.

Aunts of the bride, the Misses Henrietta and Mary Robb, entertained for the bridal party Thursday noon.

Rev. S. C. Elsea Performs Rites

The Rev. Sam C. Elsea officiated Sunday afternoon in his home, West High street, for the marriage ceremony of Miss Betty Coleman and Donald Miller of Circleville.

Miss Clara Southward of West Franklin street left Friday for Yellow Springs. She expects to remain through Sunday for the class reunions of Antioch College of which she is an alumna.

They were attended by Miss Barbara Teets of Circleville and Pvt. Joseph Bailey of Scott Field, III. Mrs. Loring Allen and Mrs. William Teets of Circleville, sisters of the bridegroom, attended the ceremony.

WHAT HAPPENED BETWEEN THE TESTAMENTS

Scripture—Daniel 2:31-45; 8: 11; Malachi 3:1-5; 4: Luke 1:67-79; 2:25-33; John 10:22, 23.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
THE FIRST part of our lesson concerns itself with visions—first a dream by King Nebuchadnezzar, interpreted by Daniel, and a vision Daniel had which was explained by a supernatural being in the form of a man.

Nebuchadnezzar's dream, which puzzled his wise men, was of seeing a great image with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, belly and thighs of brass, legs of iron and clay. Daniel said the golden head was Nebuchadnezzar himself (the Babylonian), whose reign was good; the others were progressively evil empires, the silver the Medo-Persian, Greek brass and the Roman, who was represented by the legs of iron and clay, symbolizing the eastern and western divisions of the empire. Eventually, after these conquering empires, God would set up His own government—which shall never be destroyed.” Daniel promised. That time is not yet come, but it is still the hope of the world.

Daniel's vision was of a ram with two horns, one longer than the other, and a goat with one great horn between his eyes. The scene was on the banks of a river, and as Daniel looked, the goat fought the ram and conquered and trampled him. Then the great horn was broken and four more took its place.

As Daniel was pondering the meaning of the vision a man appeared to him, and he was told that the ram with two horns represented the Medo-Persian empire, and the rough he-goat was the king of Greece, the great horn between his eyes was Alexander the Great, who conquered Medo-Persia, and the four kingdoms that arose when the great horn was broken—when Alexander died—were the four divisions of Alexander's empire, Greece, Asia Minor, Egypt and the East.

Daniel's prophecies were uttered about 590-535 B. C. Malachi came about a century later. The latter's prophecy, in Malachi, chapter 3, reads: “Behold, I will send My messenger, and he shall prepare the way before Me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall come to His temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom

Israel now again is a nation. Will this new-old land be allowed to gain peace and prosper in the family of one world?

Nebuchadnezzar's dream, which puzzled his wise men, was of seeing a great image with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, belly and thighs of brass, legs of iron and clay. Daniel said the golden head was Nebuchadnezzar himself (the Babylonian), whose reign was good; the others were progressively evil empires, the silver the Medo-Persian, Greek brass and the Roman, who was represented by the legs of iron and clay, symbolizing the eastern and western divisions of the empire. Eventually, after these conquering empires, God would set up His own government "which shall never be destroyed," Daniel promised. That time is not yet come, but it is still the hope of the world.

Daniel's vision was of a ram with two horns, one longer than the other, and a goat with one great horn between his eyes. The scene was on the banks of a river, and as Daniel looked, the goat fought the ram and conquered and trampled him. Then the great horn was broken and four more took its place.

As Daniel was pondering the meaning of the vision a man appeared to him, and he was told that the ram with two horns represented the Medo-Persian empire, and the rough be-goat was the king of Greece, the great horn between his eyes was Alexander the Great, who conquered Medo-Persia, and the four kingdoms that arose when the great horn was broken—when Alexander died—were the four divisions of Alexander's empire, Greece, Asia Minor, Egypt and the East.

Daniel's prophecies were uttered about 590-535 B.C. Malachi came about a century later.

The latter's prophecy, in Malachi, chapter 3, reads: "Behold, I will send My messenger, and he shall prepare the way before Me; and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall come to His temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom

Israel now again is a nation. Will this new-old land be allowed to gain peace and prosper in the family of one world?"

New Drugs From Soil Cure Ills

Experts Believe Wonder Era Ahead

The long-sought cures for both the common cold and infantile paralysis may be just under our feet, farming experts claim. Chloramycin, a newly-discovered drug obtained from a microbe in the soil, is the first drug which has ever had any effect against any of the virus diseases.

Hundreds of billions of soil microbes lead a wild, rough-and-tumble life in the top few inches of our soil. Some soil microbes are faithful workers—without them we could grow no crops.

Some are such deadly killers that a small speck of their poison kills a man in minutes. Yet some are heroes which snatch us from the brink of death. For instance—

A short time ago a 9-year-old boy was desperately ill with infection. Huge doses of the "miracle" drugs penicillin and streptomycin, had no effect. A year ago he would have died. Doctors from Johns Hopkins, who had been experimenting with a new germ-killer, polymyxin, injected the drug under the skin. In eight days the boy was well.

SINCE THEN doctors have some types of blood poisoning. There is hope it will end forever the danger of bubonic plague and perhaps typhoid fever. This drug, as well as penicillin and streptomycin, is obtained from the soil.

No one knows how many more such cures will be found in the soil, tho we are certain to see a steady stream of new soil-borne drugs. We have barely begun to learn what goes on underground.

We have known for centuries that soil is sometimes a purifier. It filters harmful germs from water, and most disease-causing bacteria do not long survive in the soil.

Dr. Rene Dubos, a soil bacteriologist for Rockefeller Institute, broke the trail for medical use. He found gramicidin, a powerful curative drug. Other scientists began to probe the soil. They have isolated hundreds of soil-borne microbes which are fatal to one or more disease germs.

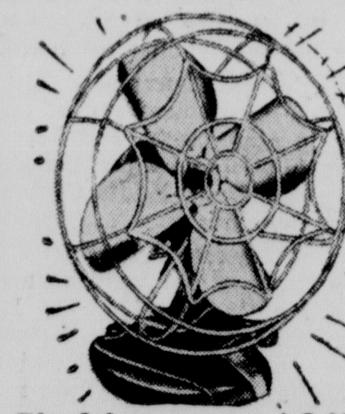

Several of them have research men excited. Some seem to work against tuberculosis. The most spectacular one for the moment,

Loop-Pacing Teams Fall; Races Tight

Braves, Indians Both Defeated

NEW YORK, June 25—The pennant races in both major loops tightened today as a result of defeats suffered by the Boston Braves and Cleveland Indians leaders in their respective leagues.

A familiar feature of both setbacks was that an ace pitcher was found wanting in the clutch.

The Cards jumped on Johnny Bain for four runs in the first inning and went on to an 11 to 2 win. The second-place Red Birds now trail the Bostons by only half a game.

Paradoxically, Howie Pollet, St. Louis southpaw who has not been as steady as usual this year, had one of his good nights and went the route for the winners. Red Schoendienst led the St. Louis attack with a homer a double and two singles.

CLEVELAND's great Bob Feller pitched fairly well in holding the New York Yankees to five hits, but unfortunately three of them were homers—by Joe DiMaggio, George McQuinn and Johnny Lindell.

New York's Vic Raschi blanketed the Indians with six hits, 4 to 0, and the Yanks advanced to within a game and a half of the league-leading Tribe.

A four-run rally in the eighth inning gave the third-place Philadelphia Athletics a 6 to 5 win over the St. Louis Browns under the arc lights. The A's are only two games out of first place.

Chicago's White Sox snapped the winning streak of the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 1, behind the six-hit pitching of Willie Wright, but two homers by Ted Williams staked the Bostons to an 8 to 5 victory in the second game of a twin bill.

Williams is in third place in the American League Homerun derby with 15 circuit clouts, behind DiMaggio and Cleveland's Ken Keltner, who have 17 each.

A grand-slam homer by Jackie Robinson in the ninth inning gave Brooklyn a 6 to 2 decision over Pittsburgh, and the Dodgers also won the second game, an eight-inning affair, 8 to 6.

Larry Jansen of the New York Giants beat the Chicago Cubs 3 to 2 for his eighth win, despite a two-run pinch homer by Clarence Maddern in the ninth inning. The Cubs routed the New Yorkers in the nightcap, 11 to 2.

LOS ANGELES, June 25—Coach Jimmy Phelan announced today that Ezzrett "Sugarfoot" Anderson, Negro end, and Bert Pittig, Negro half back, have signed with the professional Los Angeles Dons Todd McKinney, top pitcher last season, is not on the roster.

The new aggregation is virtually an all-star team from the Circleville league, although all the members of the Richards team do not now play in the triplex.

Two homers were blasted out in the game, one by Isalys Catcher Leon Sims, who poled one into rightfield.

HAROLD Stonerock hit the longest ball of the year shortly after left center field for his trip around the basepaths.

Friday night the second game of the series is to be played at the park starting at 7:15 p. m.

Also on Friday night card is a game between the Circleville All-Stars and the Dayton Cabs, a top-notch colored team in the Gem City league. The game is slated to follow the championship tilt.

Members of the All-Star aggregation include Leon Sims, Junior Clark, Lee Siegwald, Bob Moon, Gerald Reynolds, Don Valentine, Kenneth Reid, Stillman Morrison, Bill Ankrom, Harold Stonerock, Lawrence Nance, Paul Seymour, Romaine Wilson, Jim Anderson and Rod Heine.

James P. Shea, athletic officer for the local Legion, said Friday that pre-game practice for the game would begin at 1 p. m. at Ashville. Legion team members who need transportation to the game are to meet at the Legion post at 12:30 p. m.

The new team, managed by Ernest "Snap" Ankrom, is practically the same team fielded in the Circleville Night Softball League last year under the same name with the exception that

Hamilton To Be Given Berth In Cincy Tourney

COLUMBUS, June 25—Butler Public edged Middletown twice County, traditionally one of the Ohio's high school basketball hotbeds, no longer is going to dissipate all its strength in fruitless intramural warfare.

Hamilton Public and Hamilton Catholic, two members of the county's outstanding cage triumvirate, simply have aped an old army strategy.

Tired of trying to conquer the well nigh impregnable Middletown fortress, they are going to by-pass the obstacle.

In short, the two Hamilton schools have asked for, and received, permission to play in the Cincinnati district tournament rather than the previously assigned one at Dayton.

The switch seems likely to make everyone happy except the Greater Cincinnati schools who will be forced to cope with the Big Blue and the Catholic Rams.

SOME SUCH move has been cooking for a long time. The situation was frustrating to say the least when Hamilton Public and Middletown were forced, year after year, to risk eliminating one another in the lowest rung of the tourney ladder.

In recent years, the blossoming of Catholic as a cage power has made the setup even more unhappy.

In 1947, for instance, Hamilton

Tired of trying to conquer the well-nigh impregnable Middleton fortress, they are going to by-pass the obstacle.

In short, the two Hamilton schools have asked for, and received, permission to play in the Cincinnati district tournament rather than the previously assigned one at Dayton.

The switch seems likely to make everyone happy except the Greater Cincinnati schools who will be forced to cope with the Big Blue and the Catholic Rams.

SOME SUCH move has been cooking for a long time. The situation was frustrating to say the least when Hamilton Public and Middletown were forced, year after year, to risk eliminating one another in the lowest rung of the tourney ladder.

In recent years, the blossoming of Catholic as a cage power has made the setup even more unhappy.

In 1947, for instance, Hamilton defeated the Big Blue by a single point, 47-46, this time. The Middies, of course, were upset later, while Hamilton Catholic, in the opposite bracket, eventually was runnerup to Findlay for the state championship.

The transfer of the two Hamilton schools from Dayton to Cincinnati was perfectly legitimate. The transaction was approved by the south-western district athletic board, which controls both tourneys.

Actually, Hamilton is considerably nearer geographically to Cincinnati than to Dayton. Moreover, the Dayton eliminations were congested by 21 teams last Winter, while only 13 played at Cincinnati.

Two Dayton survivors and one from Cincinnati formerly wound up in regional play together.

Roundtowners Cop Game In Playground Loop

The Roundtowners softball team in the Ted Lewis Park supervised Summer playground program Thursday afternoon walked away with a 4-1 victory over the Indians. Both teams are in the four-team Class AA league at the park.

The win gave the Roundtowners a tie for league leadership with the Mud Hens, both teams having won their first game in league competition. The Cowboys and Indians are tied for league cellar standings with one loss each.

The Roundtowners Thursday victory came as the result of two-hit pitching by Roger Bennington. T. Mogan was charged with the loss, having given up six hits.

Farmers Urged To Get Land In Shape Against Future

Production Costs Are Cited Here

Top Efficiency Said Answer

Higher production costs now biting deeper into farm profits, emphasize the need for farmers to get their land in shape to produce more bushels at lower unit costs per acre, Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent, declared Friday.

"Cost of production has caught up with farm prices and downward trend will hit farm prices first," Best says. "Commodities used in farm production have more than doubled in price since 1939 according to U. S. Department of Agriculture statistics. Farm wage rates are at a record high and economists believe they will continue so this year."

The committee declares that greater crop producing efficiency is the answer to lower farm prices and soaring production costs."

"The factor that governs profits is the margin between what you get for your crops and what it costs you to produce them," Best says. "You can widen that margin and increase your profits by good soil management practices."

"THAT MEANS using every possible means of building and maintaining soil fertility. It includes 'put-back' steps and 'holding' operations. Vital among the 'put-back' steps is rebuilding the soil organic matter by growing deep-rooted legumes in the rotation and feeding them generously the phosphate and potash. The roots of alfalfa and sweet clover will pry open tight soils. The organic matter added by roots and tops will repair broken-down soil structure. That will bring better drainage and air circulation."

"You can add to the organic matter by saving all barnyard manure and putting it back on the soil, and plowing under corn stalks, straw and other crop left-overs."

Your 'holding' operation can include contouring, grass waterways and terracing if necessary. These will save moisture, topsoil and plant nutrients from going down the drain.

"Working in cooperation, all these soil management measures will give you more bushels per acre. They will help you cut production costs and boost profits."

Man With Broken Back To Wed

STERLING, Ill., June 25—Although her fiance has a broken back, Miss Jeanne Brooks, 19, of Des Moines, believes it's bad luck to change a wedding date.

For that reason she and Edmund Byrne, 19, also of Des Moines, gave notice today of their wedding Sunday.

The ceremony will take place in Sterling Public hospital where Byrne is recovering from a broken back he suffered June 12 when a truck upset.

Their wedding date was set several months ago.

Physicians have said that Byrne will recover but that he will be hospitalized for several months.

Ex-Localite's 'Naturalization' Cleared After 28-Year Mixup

A mixup in naturalization procedure in Circleville before the turn of the century this week ended in citizenship for an 89-year-old Portsmouth woman.

Mrs. Emilie Wenhamer, widow of the late Herman Wenhamer, was an immigrant in 1892 with her husband from Insterburg, Germany. A short time after they arrived in this country her husband was "naturalized" in Circleville.

In the years since, Mrs. Wenhamer has been exercising all the rights of a citizen and has voted since 1920 when women's suffrage became a law, believing all the while she was a citizen.

However, in 1943, officers of the Ohio aid for aged pension discovered that only her husband's first papers had been filed.

Acting under revised laws affecting handicapped applicants for citizenship, a judge, court clerk, naturalization examiner and witnesses carried out a private hearing in Mrs. Wenhamer's residence.

The EXAMINER expressed his belief that this was the first time the revised law has ever been used in the country to hold a hearing in the applicant's home.

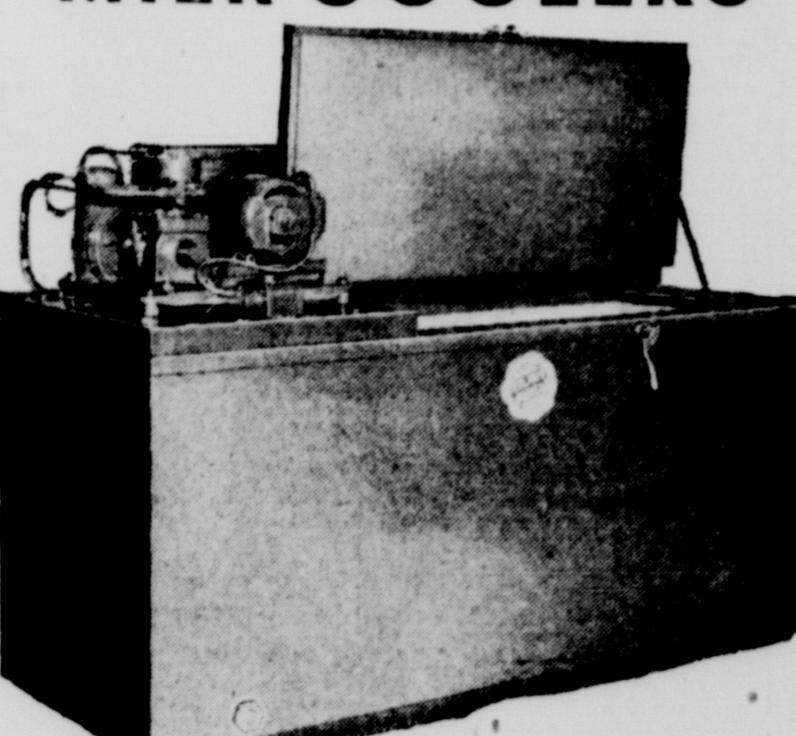

In her petition, Mrs. Wenhamer pointed out she still is carried on the voting lists of her ward and precinct.

Gambling machines took more American money in depression days in 1938 than in the prosperous year of 1929, it has been estimated.

After tidying up the sidewalk with her broom, Mrs. Jung re-entered her home and found a burglar. She started swinging the broom with abandon, cracking him over the head, and the unwelcome intruder fled.

Her screams attracted neighbors who called police. Later police nabbed David Jackson, 56, a parolee, as he boarded a trolley bus. In his pocket police found a watch which Mrs. Jung identified as hers. Today Mrs. Jung went shopping to replace her broken broom.

Experts Cite Four Elm Tree Disease Curbs

The dread Dutch elm disease, killer of thousands of trees, is spreading rapidly over large areas.

Control measures should include: (1) pruning and burning of all dead material from elms; (2) removing of the bark before elm wood is stored or dumped, if the wood is not destroyed; (3) piling of stored elm wood in a dry building or cellar; (4) removing and burning promptly all elm trees killed by the disease.

There are three good clues for spotting the diseased trees, according to University of Massachusetts specialists.

Evidence of woodpecker work is one. Where strips of bark have been removed from tree limbs it may indicate that woodpeckers are feeding on elm bark beetles, carriers of the Dutch elm disease.

SHEPHERD'S CROOKS are another sign of the disease. These crooks are twisted twigs branching out at the end of last season's growth. Third, lack of Spring buds may indicate that the trees have been attacked by the disease.

Early detection of the disease will aid control measures, foresters say.
